

Pancreatic ductal adenocarcinoma (PDAC) is a highly aggressive malignancy characterized by abundant cancer-associated fibroblasts (CAFs), which create a 'desmoplasia' that severely restricts oxygen and nutrient delivery. We investigated how PDAC cells maintain lipid homeostasis under these conditions. Our findings indicate that PDAC